TWO CENTS

JES WERE PLAYING A SLICK GAME AT COUNTY SEAT

Visit Banks to Have Bills of Large Figures Changed

WERE ARRESTED ON SUSPICION

Two gypsies endeavored to work a slick game on Washington banks on Monday, which caused them to be arrested as suspicious characters and resulted in their being fined $5 each together with costs.

Their plan of action appeared to be to enter a bank and ask change for a bill of large denomination then claim to be short-changed and demand that it be made good. They entered the People's Bank at Washington, where one of the men presented a hundred dollar bill which he asked to be exchanged for smaller bills. The money was carefully counted out and given to the man, who, after examining his change, shuffled the bills and then passed a $20 back and asked to be given gold. He then declared he had been short-changed and that he had but $80, but it was found that he had dropped a $20 on the floor and then placed his foot on it.

A customer in the bank at the time noticing this conduct notified the police so that the strangers might be watched. After leaving the People's Bank they went to the Union Trust Company and tried the same tactics, but the teller refused to change a $50 bill. Leaving there they were seen by the police to ask a passer-by to direct them to a bank, where their arrest immediately followed as suspicious characters. When taken to the police station one man was found to have $600 in large bills while the second had $300 in $50 bills.

Youngstown was said to be their home, while articles on their clothing showed they had recently been various cities in the south and west.

Special Guards Are Relieved At Locks

The temporary guards, which have been on duty at the various locks and dams of the Monongahela river since the beginning of the war with Germany were relieved on Monday, and their equipment turned over to government officials. At Lock No. 4 had special guards placed on duty at all of these improvements, not only along the Monongahela, but on the Ohio and Allegheny as well. Now, only being relieved of special duty, their equipment was turned over to Lockmaster Sweeney, who says they have been relieved of their duty to Pittsburgh on Monday, and placed back on their regular work.

COUNTY IS AHEAD ON THIS OFFICE

The statement published by Controller Underwood a few days ago contains some items that are of interest to the public particularly as it refers to the relation between the sums turned into the county treasury in the way of fines and forfeited recognizances and the expenses of the office directly responsible for those payments. The great bulk of the money thus placed at the services of the taxpayers resulted from the arrests of persons engaged in the illegal sale of liquor through the activity of the district attorney's office. The following table shows the amounts:

Fines	$24,550.00
Forfeited bail	2,720.00
Confiscated money	270.00
	$27,540.00

Of the above, some $4,000 remains to be collected by the parole officer, but it is simply secured. The confiscated money referred to was taken from punch boards that were being illegally operated and was paid into the treasury. These fines and forfeitures, exceed the salaries and costs of running the district attorney's office by $14,043.66 and exceeds the combined cost of running the district attorney's office and that of the parole officer by $10,414.66.

William Kibler and Miss Hilla Cunniff, both of Charlevoi, were married at the parsonage of Christ Lutheran church Monday evening by the Rev. Bastian. The young couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. William Pierce, and the ring ceremony was used.

STEAMER VOYAGER IS AGAIN IN COMMISSION

The steamer Voyager, owned by the Pittsburg Coal Company, after being thoroughly overhauled and equipped with new condensing machinery, made its appearance again on Monday. The boat made its first trip to the Fourthpool for a tow of coal, going up through Lock 4 early last evening.

RED CROSS TELLS OF LOCAL BOY'S DEATH

W. H. Calvert is in receipt of a letter from Dortha Barney of the Home Communication Service, American Red Cross, and stationed at Base Hospital No. 78, Savannah, with reference to the death of his son Arden E. Calvert, which occurred in November. The letter is dated December 3, and says:

"My Dear Mr. Calvert: You have no doubt been officially notified of the death of your dear son Arden, but I thought a letter from a Red Cross worker giving you a little further information might be of some comfort. Base Hospital No. 78, Savannah (which you will find on the map near St. Nazaire) is a large institution, modern and well equipped. Because of its location far back from the battle lines, it has always been possible to do almost as much for the patients as could be done for them at home in a civil hospital. However, in spite of the efforts of both doctors and nurses Arden died of the last pneumonia, from which he was suffering on November 6th at 10:30 p. m.

"On November 8th he was buried in our little American cemetery No. 22, in grave No. 119-A. The casket draped in an American flag was carried on a caisson, before which the Chaplain and the guard marched in military formation. After Chaplain Trexler read the service, a salute of three volleys was fired, and Taps was played.

"To all who have experienced it, this moment is one of heartbreaking sadness, but it carries with it a dignity and pride for the soldier who has given his life so unselfishly in this struggle for the freedom of the world. I am sure you share the same pride, and that it will be a lasting comfort to you in your great sorrow. The little graveyard, which is surrounded by tall green hedges, overlooks the Loire valley and is within sight of the hospital. Other American soldiers lie there, each grave being marked with a white cross, bearing the name and organization of the soldier. "Our hearts go out to the ones at Red Cross, and for myself to extend home who are sharing the sacrifice to you the most heartfelt sympathy made by those who have come over and given their lives for their country and for Liberty. Words seem

One New Applicant Applies for Privilege at Finleyville

NUMBER NOT TO BE INCREASED

Monday was the last day on which to file applications for license to be in the clerk of courts office at Washington, and it proved to be a quiet day in fact one of the quietest days in the history of the office.

This year all those who now have licenses are again making applications, while there is but one new applicant, James E. Hayden, of Finleyville, who was refused last year. The Finleyville situation has been somewhat peculiar, having passed around the village one year, leaving Mr. Hayden, hotel and the next year giving the privilege to Mr. Hayden. Should the same rule prevail this year Mr. Hayden will be the fortunate one for a short period in which license will be of effect.

Those who make applications for license do so with the understanding that they will be able to keep their license for two months. The license for the first of May and another for the first of July and another for the first of September. These licenses are being taken a chance, as they may be sooner modified or even refused. The license for the first of July which will expire on the first of September, will be open again after that date. All of the rights, however, of the county are applicants, but for a license only, as they are not permitted to manufacture by the general government. All distilleries now refused license last year on the ground that the government forbade the distillation of liquor. These applicants for a license filed on Monday, and for a license by the Donora brewery.

Notice to Tax Payers All unpaid taxes for the year 1918 must be paid at once. The collector will start immediately to collect in accordance to the law. This also applies to those who may have previous years unpaid. This notice is signed: Fred W. Brady, Tax Collector.

Announcement I have resumed work of developing and printing Kodak pictures. At all customers as well as new customers will be gladly received. Matt. H. Kelley, 211 McKean avenue. 178-48

"GET WISE"---IN TIME

Why not get wise in time? Why wait till it is too late? People all over the country, north, south, east and west, are getting wise to the ruinous results of out-of-town buying. Thinking people are now refusing to patronize out-of-town houses. Are we going to wait until we are knocked down and run over before we "get wise"? Let us spend our time and money in building up something that is ours. Patronage of home business means the building up of a strong industrial community of our own. Neglect of home business interests means the building up of a machine that will one day crush us without mercy. Let us build for ourselves and for our friends and neighbors. Let us "get wise" before it is too late.

HAS TROUBLE AT BLOCKED CROSSING

A taxi enroute to Brownsville from Fayette City one night last week encountered a blocked crossing at Lynn's station on the Redstone Branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad and had quite an unpleasant experience in getting out of the dilemma.

The road at that point is very narrow, and there was not room sufficient to turn the machine after discovering the crossing had been blocked. A watchman in a shanty near by refused to assist the taxi man in any manner and suggested rather facetiously that he stay where he was until daylight when the crew would come around. The taxi owner, however, in attempting to get over the tracks and finish the trip, got his machine in such a position that he had to jack his car up over the rails, and before he succeeded in getting across bent one of the axles on the machine.

WILDLIFE ON A RUNAWAY BARGE

Three men on a barge that had broken loose from its moorings in the Fourth pool along with two other barges had a thrilling experience last Thursday afternoon. The rushing waters jammed the barges against the Redstone tipples and tore it down over their heads. The tipples structure floated down the river while the barges continued on their wild course down the river. The men called for help and a telephone message sent to a steamer lying in a landing upriver, which gave chase and finally caught the runaway in front of Fayette City, where the three men were rescued.

WANT GARMENTS AND YARN FUMIGATED

The Charleroi Chapter of the American Red Cross requests the heads of all local Red Cross Auxiliaries to send to it that all knitted articles as well as yarn that comes from homes where the influenza has prevailed be thoroughly fumigated before turning them in. It is said that a quantity of yarn was in homes where the influenza prevailed, and in order to make the garments made up from this year free from all germs, it is requested they be fumigated. In this way all possible danger from infection will be entirely eliminated.

Raymond Graff, the young man who was injured at the Walton Lumber Company plant last week, and who is now a patient at the Charleroi-Monessen hospital, is getting along as well as his injuries will permit. It will be some time before he is able to be out.

NO COUNTERFEIT FOR PIGSKIN

One Who Knows Can Always Tell, Almost at a Glance, if Hide is Genuine or Not.

Probably you have some time or other in your life bought a pair of pigskin leggings or putties. How do you know they are pigskin? As a matter of fact there is no leather in the world just like pigskin in wearing quality. A saddle, a holster, or a pair of putties made of this homely material will come pretty near proving its destructibility.

There is one easy way by which you can always tell pigskin. Examine it closely and you will find that the little black spots on the outside of the hide are always located in groups of three. The whole surface will look speckled, but these specks will be in groups of three, always and without fail, in any hide once worn by a porker.

Another part of the test is to look at the grain side of the hide. You will find here that there are holes all the way through. As a matter of fact, the bristles of the hog grow entirely through the skin, and are not shed, but by the skin itself but by the fatty tissues of the animal.

PUTS SIDNEY IN HIGH PLACE

First Goods Prose Writer in Our Language, Said Hallam, and Other Critics Agree With Him.

The very name of Sidney's "Arcadia" is aromatic in the imagination, and its traditional place in our literature is unquestioned, writes George W. Curtis. In our day it is little read, for it is a very interesting story. But under its quaint and courtly conceits its tone is so pure and lofty, its courtesy, and appreciation of women so hearty and honorable; it has so fine a moral atmosphere, such noble thoughts, such stately and beautiful descriptions, that to read it is like conversing with a hero. So there is no better reading than the "Defense of Poesy" (that hymn of loyalty to intellectual beauty) Hallam well calls Sidney "the first good prose writer" in our language, and scarcely had he finished his "Defense" an exquisite criticism of English poetry to that time than the full choir of Elizabethan poets burst into:

The songs that all
The spacious times of great Elizabeth
With sounds that echo still.

Merely Look Wise.

No assembly, sanctum, areopagus or court of star chamber ever looked more solemn or more profound than a smoking car full of commuters; they sit in a 70-foot box of blue vapor, busy with the persistent and futile scratching of old matches; and yet nowhere on earth will you hear so much balderdash uttered.

Ave impudice women, particularly women young and fair, not to be misled by the sage and philosophic bearing of men as last night his pipe. A young-looking tobacco is no wiser than a woman putting garlands in her hair. Like most things which are entirely true, this is very sad. For if error a man should be wise and profound as Rabbidnanath and Ralph Waldo Trine together, it is when he is accomplishing this sacred and pensive rite of lighting up.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Book of the Universe.

It is from the study of the true theology that all our knowledge of science is derived, and it is from that knowledge that all the arts have originated. The Almighty Lecturer, by displaying the principles of science in the structure of the universe, has invited man to study and to imitate. It is as if he had said to the inhabitants of this globe that we call ours, "I have made an earth for man to dwell upon, and I have rendered the starry heavens visible to teach him science and the arts. He can now provide for his own comfort, and learn from my munificence to all to be kind to each other."—Thomas Paine.

CONSTABLE HAS AN EXCITING BOUT

Constable Helmkin of Fayette City had a rough and tumble experience one night last week when he went to investigate who was firing a revolver along the road near Arnold City. Helmkin had been at Arnold City on business and was returning home at the time. He heard several shots discharged behind him and going back found three men walking toward him. The constable stopped them and asked if any one of them had a gun. Two of the men threw up their hands, thus protesting their innocence, but the third one refused to be investigated. The officer attempted to search him when he resisted. A rough and tumble followed in which the officer was thrown down, but he managed to clip his handcuffs on the recalcitrant.

The three men made their escape but the next morning the man who had been handcuffed sent for the officer to take the bracelets off his wrist. He had endeavored to file them off but finding he was making no headway finally concluded to send for the officer who removed them, but at the same time arrested the man and his two companions. They were brought before Justice Sisley of Fayette City where the matter was adjusted by the men paying the costs and promising better behavior in the future.

The Meat Trade Journal of England says that Birmingham has a way of dealing with old bones which is held up by the national salvage council for imitation in other parts of the country. Butchers who sell bones undertake to buy them back after the housewife has made full use of them, paying the customer half the proceeds of their disposal for national purposes. In this way they are saved to the nation, which is urgently in need of the glycerine they contain, as well as of the phosphates for manure and the valuable pig and poultry foods which can be extracted from them. Housewives are showing themselves eager to respond to the government's appeal for bones.

DID NO DAMAGE TO MACHINERY

In spite of the fact that during the recent flood there were eight feet of water in the power house at Lock 4, Engineer Charles H. Crabb was fortunate to find everything in good shape when the waters receded. A couple valves were found to be clogged with ice when the machinery was uncovered but this was soon removed. As soon as the water was low enough to lock steamers at No. 4 the machinery was in its usual splendid working order and ready for business. Lockings are made with greater promptness at No. 4 than any other point on the river.

"The Prussian Cur"

Capt. Horst von der Goltz, once the Kaiser's personal friend, who served the Imperial German Government as a secret agent for ten years, who engineered the notorious plot to blow up the locks of the Weyland Canal in Canada, who escaped death as a spy in the Tower of London by coming to America to testify for the United States, this man, who knows more about the German spy system than any other living person, has exposed in "The Prussian Cur" the whole astounding mass of secret information which he gained in countless intrigues in Europe, Mexico, Canada and our own country.

Not only this, but Capt. von der Goltz actually appears in scene after scene, depicting the devilish workings of the system which he formerly served.

"The Prussian Cur" reveals with gripping realism the whole nefarious plot of Germany to cripple America. From first to last this picture is a thrilling, damning indictment of the German Spy System.

Our display of Fall Furniture suggesting new ideas for the furnishing of any room in the house, is the most extensive we have ever planned.
